Today we will...

WE ARE LEARNING TO

- Spot who is thinking in a story part
- Tell my view apart from story voices
- Explain why views can differ

SUCCESS LOOKS LIKE

- ✓ I can name my view, the narrator's, and a character's
- ✓ I can use clues to show whose view it is

Three different views

👀

My view

What I think and feel.

📖

Narrator's view

How the teller tells it.

🎭

Character's view

What a story person thinks.

Watch: Whose thought is it?

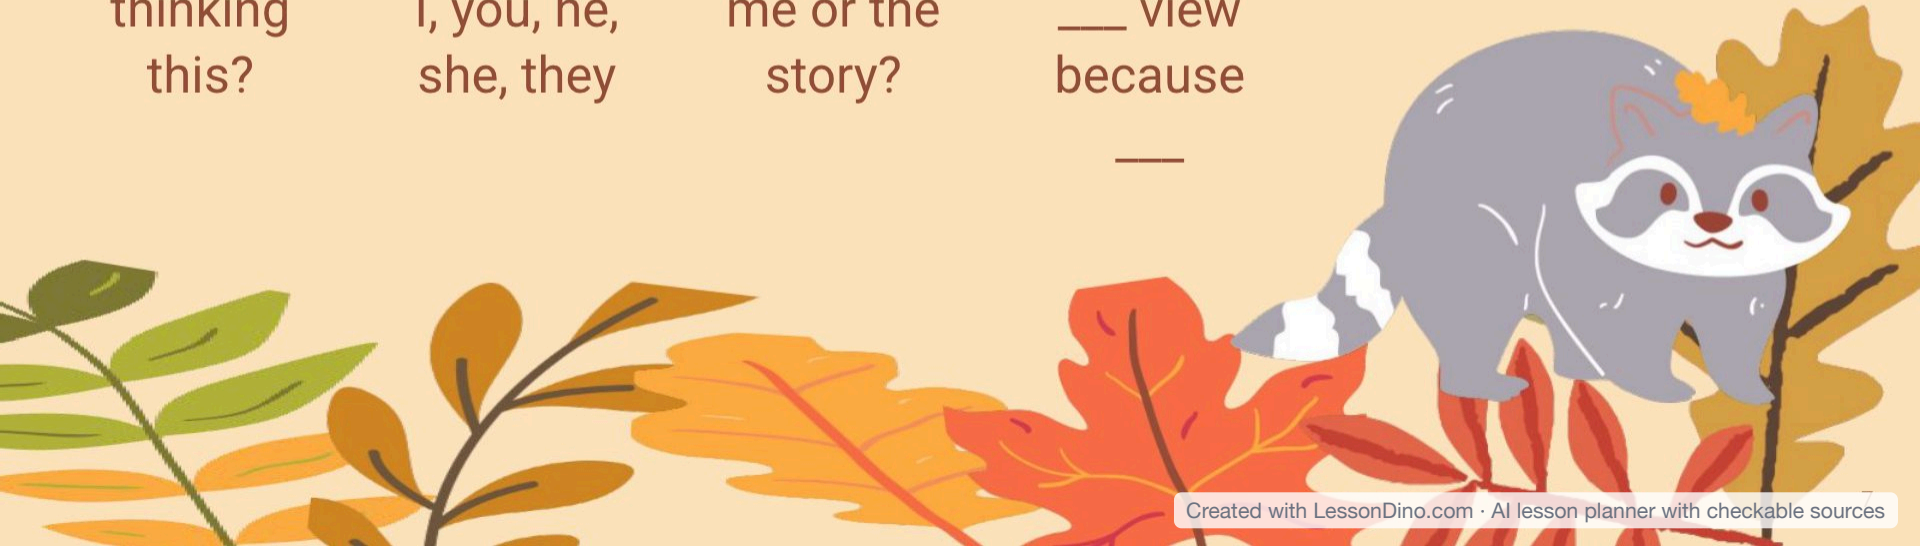

▶ 0:00 – 3:43

- Listen for I think vs. the character thinks
- Show thumbs up for your view

Sort a view in 4 steps

1. Ask: Who is thinking this?
2. Find clues: I, you, he, she, they
3. Ask: Is this me or the story?
4. Say: This is ___ view because ___

Your task

In pairs, make three voice lines about a rainy recess.

1. Say your view: I think...
2. Say narrator line: The kids...
3. Say character line with he or she...
4. Point and label: me, narrator, character

Whose view?

- my feelings
- character's wants
- same event

Whose view?

- narrator's words
- word clues

What could this be?

One student cheers. One groans. Same puddle. How?

True or false?

My view is always the same as a character's.

The narrator is the voice telling the story.

Same event can look different to different characters.

I in talk always means first-person narrator.
